The widespread and often uninformed perspective that Africans/African States always expect solutions to their problems to be provided by the “generous” Westerners and their governments will be critically examined in this seminar. The seminar will explore alternative perspective that draws on African resistance to European colonial rule in Africa, international political/financial structures, and Western Interests in ‘postcolonial’ period - with the campaign to abolish the debt of ‘poor countries’ and the Jubilee 2000 Campaign (J2K).
